

Solid active substance formulation

A b s t r a c t

The present invention relates to novel solid active substance formulations comprising solid active substances, dispersants, and polymers which together result in a fine-particle, predominantly amorphous mixture, to a process for the preparation thereof and to the use thereof for application of the contained bioactive active substances.